Unna, 2 January 2023 – As part of an asset deal, AXXERON HESCH electronics GmbH has taken over the business and manufacturing site of SCHORISCH Elektronik GmbH, thus creating a branch in the greater Hamburg area. In addition to the attractive location of SCHORISCH Elektronik GmbH, the decisive factors for the acquisition were above all the expertise in the field of manufacturing explosion-proof assemblies and devices as well as the strong company growth. The integration into the AXXERON group, which offers broad industrial expertise, creates targeted synergy potential.

AXXERON Technologies GmbH is an active management holding company that focuses on acquisitions and the operational development of innovative medium-sized companies. With the objective of creating solutions for integrated systems and networking of applications, AXXERON concentrates on the two business areas AUTOMATION (industrial electronics, sensor technology) and MOTION (fluid technology) and integrates the associated portfolio companies. The AUTOMATION business unit is managed by AXXERON HESCH electronics GmbH. AXXERON HESCH offers high-quality system solutions and components for industrial and process automation. With four decades of experience, the company is a specialist in the development and production of electronic measurement and control devices as well as for industrial automation systems and plants.

SCHORISCH Elektronik GmbH, a company with a long tradition, is based in Wentorf near Hamburg and has been known as an outstanding partner for individual solutions in electronic assemblies, efficient manufacturing and assembly solutions.
